TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Dec. 12, 2014 /PRNewswire-IR/ -- RTV, Inc (RTV), a Traverse City based virtual tour software and photo service firm announced today they are officially a Google Trusted Photography Agency. Google Trusted Photography Agencies must go through rigorous testing and training to ultimately manage a group of professional photographers that are used to photograph, create, and publish Google Maps Business View virtual tour productions.

A Google Maps Business View virtual tour allows Internet users to "Step Inside" a local business from any computer, laptop, or portable device. When present, a Business View virtual tour will be prominently displayed within the Google search results next to the business contact information, directions and reviews. Upon clicking "See Inside" users are able to take an instant virtual tour of that particular business giving them an experience similar to that of the Google Street View technology.

RTV will be leveraging their well-established network of over 1000 professional photographers around the world to offer both the RTV Fusion Virtual Tour Software product as well as the Google Maps Business View product to thousands of local businesses throughout the USA, Canada, and other countries.

With the project just sixty days underway, RTV already has nearly two hundred photographers on their way to being certified as agency photographers with more new recruits showing interest in the program every week. The catalyst driving this intensive push to quickly become a Google Trusted Agency came in October of 2014 when a national hotel chain awarded RTV with 1500 + hotel shoots, each requiring 30 professional photographs and a Google Maps Business View virtual tour of the hotel. RTV is estimating this initiative to be completed by July or August of 2015.

"We just knocked out five hundred hotels in ten weeks for another major brand earlier this year," said Jason LaVanture, VP and Founder of RTV. "Fifteen hundred hotels with Google shoots by August should be doable assuming we keep up our current pace. It's one thing to get a few people to do something all at once, but another altogether trying to get a thousand photographers to purchase the special equipment, take Google photography classes, pass the Google quizzes, and attend our weekly webinars that we're currently holding on the subject.

"Right now it's nothing short of a miracle that we have so many loyal photographers running down this path with us. It's brilliant!"
